

Rachael Kenney (she): That was a really wonderful overview, Matt, thank you!

Matt DeCamp: Thanks!

Rachael Kenney (she): Heads up that we see the presenter view of the slides

Borsika Rabin (she/her): I have seen it briefly but have not used it yet.

Emily Godfrey: I don't have the PDF

Borsika Rabin (she/her): Can you send the link to the pdf?

Rachael Kenney (she): It's on the page where you entered the session

Rachael Kenney (she): This might work: https://coprhcon.learningtimesevents.org/wp-content/uploads/2021/05/DeCampMorseYtell\_StakeholderWebtool.pdf

Cynthia Vinson (NCI): I really like this tool! Think it is really helpful!

Erin Kenzie: Yeah this is great -- thanks!

Rachel Steinberg: Definitely going to show this tool to my team :)

Jess Indresano (they/them): One suggestion, which may or may not be worth the effort now that we're coming out of COVID restrictions, would be adding something explicit about virtual engagement options to each approach.

Venice Ng Williams (she/hers): Offering a virtual opportunity further promotes inclusivity!

Emily Godfrey: Our PCOR team published a paper on virtual engagement - a way to give teams a starting point: Thayer EK, Pam M, Al Achkar M, Mentch L, Brown G, Kazmerski TM, Godfrey EM. Best practices for virtual engagement of patient-centered outcomes research teams during and after the COVID-19 pandemic: Qualitative Study, J Particip Med 2021;13(1) e24966. PMID: 33646964

Kate Ytell (she/her): Thank you for sharing, Emily!

Jess Indresano (they/them): I imagine it would make it easier for folks with mobility concerns, child care needs, rural areas... A lot of folks would probably be able to engage more when travel commitments are reduced!

Jess Indresano (they/them): Thanks for sharing, Emily!

Emily Godfrey: The guide is also online at Univ of Washington: <https://familymedicine.uw.edu/pcor-guide/>

Emily Godfrey: Very helpful to know about these engagement tools! thank you for sharing.

Rachael Kenney (she): Where do we find your contact info?
